Liveboard for Open Water certified divers (for 10 people)

Locations

Dive into the South Andaman Sea's most captivating sites, where vibrant coral gardens and towering walls teem with marine life. Explore iconic spots like Hin Daeng, famous for its red coral walls and sightings of manta rays, and Koh Bida Nok, where colorful reefs and hidden caverns reveal lionfish, scorpionfish, and sometimes whale sharks. Every dive promises thrilling encounters with both vibrant reef fish and majestic pelagics, making for a truly unforgettable adventure.

The Boat

Relax on the 23-meter MV Chalan 10, a "glamping-style" liveboard where you can choose to sleep in cozy cabins or under the stars on the open-air deck. With its friendly, laid-back atmosphere, the boat provides a safe and professional way to explore the Andaman Sea in comfort.

Cabin or Deck Space?

Once aboard, pick a cabin or claim a deck spot for a night under the stars - whatever makes your adventure unforgettable. The cabins are shared, so if you travel solo, you might be sharing a cabin with your new best friend. Whenever possible, the cabins will be delegated without mixing genders. However, this can not be guaranteed on all trips.

Key dive sites

Below you will find descriptions of select dive sites from the schedule. Explore additional dive site descriptions on: <https://www.asiadivesite.com/thailand-dive-sites/>

Stonehenge is a prized dive site for photographers. Strong currents add excitement, with sheltered spots revealing crabs, gobies, and ghost pipefish. Drifting along unveils vibrant gorgonian fans and colorful soft corals dotted with blue tunicates. Towering boulders rise like silent sentinels, often with a circling leopard shark.

Koh Sarang, the southernmost of the Far Islands, features an exciting wall drift dive. Its southern corner reveals vibrant pink and purple soft coral gardens and the Christmas Tree Pinnacle, a coral-covered formation resembling a decorated tree. Strong currents, especially during Full and Black moons, make this dive suitable for experienced divers.

Hin Daeng is one of the country's top dive sites, featuring walls and ledges covered in red soft corals. Its isolation attracts larger marine life, including mantas and occasionally grey reef or whale sharks. The vibrant marine life includes clown and redtooth triggers, powder blue surgeonfish, and large morays, along with patrolling barracuda and a resident school of batfish. While popular, expect ocean traffic during peak times.

Koh Hah is a group of five islands 25 km west of Koh Lanta, with six dive sites and good visibility. Abundant marine life includes morays, nudibranchs, and larger species like tuna and jacks. At Koh Haa Yai, a series of caves leads to an underwater chamber lit by natural light, showcasing stunning stalactites. The entrance is about 12 meters deep, allowing divers to surface for a breathtaking view.

Bida Nok, a small islet 2 km south of Koh Phi Phi Ley, is a top dive site. It has a shallow bay with vibrant coral gardens and a steep hard coral wall that shelters various moray eels. Caverns and overhangs hide bearded scorpionfish and lionfish. From December to February, manta rays and whale sharks are occasionally spotted here.

Conditions:

Visibility

Inside islands 10 - 20 meters
Outside islands 20 - 30 meters
